

Mr Ross Taylor (Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer)

Ross commenced with Tenix as CEO on April 20th 2009.

After gaining his engineering degree Ross has spent his career in the Real Estate, Construction and Engineering sectors both in Australia and Internationally.

His immediate roles before joining Tenix were spent running companies around the world that spanned the full property value chain. This included businesses focused on Funds Management, Property Development, Construction and Project Management, Facilities Management and Maintenance.

Prior to this Ross's career was focused in the construction and engineering area commencing as a design engineer and ultimately running significant companies in this sector both regionally and globally.

Ross has had extensive experience in driving businesses to create value for both the customer and the shareholder and enjoys doing this the most along side innovative and committed, people and teams

He is committed to no harm coming to any person involved with the businesses activities and is an advocate for businesses to play a serious role in driving the world towards increasingly more sustainable practices and products.
